Resilience

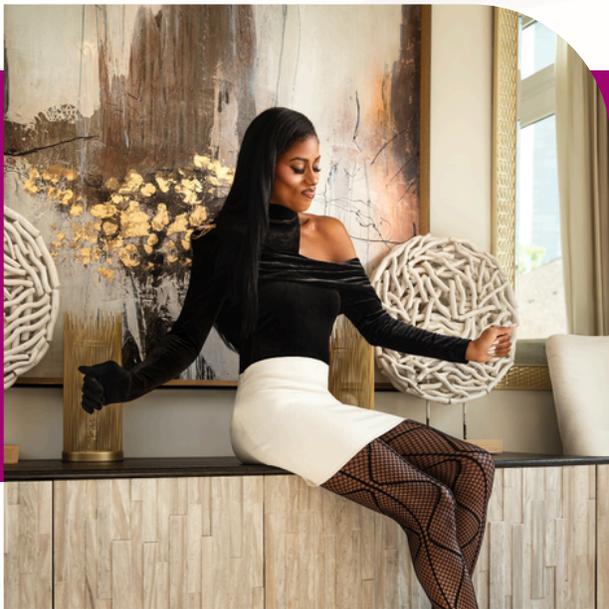

In The Workplace

Imagine you have the proper credentials and consistently wow your superiors with your zeal for your role. You strategically network with peers within your scope of interest to better understand and refine your craft. You stand by the motto “all hands on deck” to support your team when in the trenches. You do all of this to only be continuously overlooked for opportunities to flourish - placing you in a position to have to fight for your worth in the workplace.

Deketa Tranae shares her real-life career experiences as she channeled “resilience” to navigate the adversities of ageism, gender bias, and authenticity. You will leave the workshop empowered to advocate for yourself and equipped to break through barriers to intentionally curate a space that will allow you to honor your values and thrive in your role.

Raving Reviews...

Claire Dees

Executive Director
Spectrum Autism Support Group

"I was deeply moved by Deketa's ability to uplift and empower moms with children on the autism spectrum. Her message was so insightful and practical and provided a beacon of hope and encouragement. Deketa doesn't just speak; she touches hearts, leaving a lasting impact on all who listen. Truly, an extraordinary advocate for women focusing on strength and empowerment."

I absolutely love Deketa Tranae. She has great energy, is accomplished, and loves connecting with audiences. She shares many topics including overcoming adversity, authenticity, leveraging your voice, and showing up as your 'best self' every day. She believes we all deserve and are capable of discovering our passion, pursuing our dreams, and making an impact on the world while having balance. If you are looking to accelerate personal growth and development, or simply need a motivational speaker, she is the best choice.
